NEW Hach Flow White Paper Released

Wireless Technologies and Non-Contact Flow Measurement Open a New Door for Flow Data Delivery and Hands-Off Flow Monitoring

Frederick MD – September 2010 – Hach Company, Flow Meter Products & Services, is pleased to announce the release of their latest flow monitoring white paper. The paper was written by Jim Darby, Hach Flow Applications Development Manager. Mr. Darby is a wastewater flow instrumentation expert with over 35 years of industry experience. Based on his expertise and drawing on independent data from nationally recognized engineering firms, the White Paper addresses how the combination of wireless technologies and non-contact flow measurement has opened a new door for flow data delivery and hands-off flow monitoring.
